Enterprise Risk Management

From the customer's side of the transaction

Wednesday, January 21, 2015 11:00 AM - 12:30 PM CST

Enterprise Risk Management is the first of a three-part series "Getting the Most out of Your Debit Card" by the CIO Academy. This session will allow participants to learn about all varieties of transactions and the relationship to the enterprise. Dan Fisher, as a banking executive, has over 30 years' experience with payments and banking technologies, Fisher knows what he is talking about. 10 years ago Fisher founded The Copper River Group and it is still going strong today! The company has assisted clients with contract negotiations, regulatory compliance, technology strategies, and planning for new and emerging payments systems.

This webinar will answer the questions on how financial institutions can monitor and protect their customers use of electronic payments and the Internet. During the 90-minute session, attendees will learn the definition of the transaction enterprise, knowing the risks, and learn about the different processing options available.

After registering you will receive a confirmation email containing information about joining the training.
